EGGS EVERY MONTH.

How to Manage a Flock to Secure Such Results.

Where poultry raising is carried on with the aim of profit the surest way to success is to have a flock that will yield every month in the year. This can be accomplished, but it will necessitate having chicks hatched out nice of the twelve months. December, January and February are the months that may be the exceptions. If, however, incubators and brooders are employed, and the farmer desires to make poultry raising a regular business as does the poultry expert, the three months specified as exceptions will really be the chief ones for hatching. To hatch and care for chicks during these three winter months will require brooder houses with the usual pipe system of heating and a suitable room to run the incubators in—a room that will not be affected too much by outside changes of temperature. It would hardly be advisable for farmers to commence poultry raising as a business in an extensive manner and depend mainly on incubators an artificial brooders.

The venture should be first made with hens as sitters and having a number of small comfortable houses with hot-bed sash runs for the broods. Better still would be a long building, divided up into suitable runs and apartments for hens with broods. A house of this kind should be situated on a southern slope, where there will be afforded every opportunity for sunshine and dryness. A stove should be provided, and the stove-pipe should run some distance inside to retain as much as possible all the heat that the draught usually carries out through this channel. If there is too much difficulty experienced in having hens broody as desired then it will be well to commence the trial of an incubator. A machine of 100-eggs capacity is better than a larger one to commence with. Home-made brooders can easily be made, which will work satisfactorily. There are, however, brooders that can be purchased for $5 up that give excellent results. From the hatchings of each month there should be selected some of the thriftiest-growing pullets and they should, as soon as possible, be separated from the others. Give them a place where they need not be crowded and where they can be given good attention. Probably after about one year's experience—provided what is too often termed bad luck has sharpened the ideas, and proved that failures are due directly to mismanagement and nothing else—it will be the time to start on a more extensive scale. It will then be well enough to commence running the incubators by the 1st of October. When the supply of eggs for incubators is needed, from November to March, the importance of having a healthy, vigorous flock will be appreciated. Where good summer care has been given to a flock that has been properly selected they will be in good condition to go through the ordeal of the winter months in good shape. If a good, varied diet is provided and such flocks are comfortably housed and have good, roomy scratching sheds to secure required exercise during inclement weather, the eggs from such a flock of hens should prove very fertile. In fact, hens from properly kept flocks under similar conditions have produced eggs in winter that averaged 93 per cent. of fertile ones in every hundred. To have eggs every month in the year, as before stated, necessitates hatching some eggs nearly every month, and it will be found after one has secured sufficient experience that incubators are cheaper and far more reliable than hens during the months of cold weather. In such cases hens that become broody and would lose valuable time if allowed to sit, can readily be "broken up" and soon be again producing eggs.

In making poultry raising a regular business, locality and convenience of markets should be duly considered. No matter how promising scrub poultry may be they cannot compete with pure-bred stock. The pure breeds possess utility qualities unsurpassed and proper selection maintains it. It should be remembered that in every branch of the poultry business cleanliness, dryness, a varied diet of clean, wholesome food, are requirements that cannot be dispensed with. Success as well as failure in any occupation comes from easily traceable causes, and there is no luck or lottery about it. Effort is rewarded in accordance with intelligent application. Good judgment is especially valuable in the poultry business. —Baltimore Sun.

The Ledger Monthly for November

"Ian MacLaren, His Home life in Liverpool," with pictures of his house, his church and family, is the title of an article in the Ledger Monthly for November, which all readers of this keen and humorous portrayal of Scotch character will enjoy. The picture on the cover of this number is a reproduction in color of J. G. Brown's painting, "Memories of the Red Ear," a work suggestive of the happy long ago, in an old New England farmer's life, full of unconscious pathos and the poetry of work. It is accompanied by a descriptive poem by W. J. Henderson. The frontispiece is the fine portrait of Sir Walter Scott from Lawrence's famous painting. Six of Harry Roseland's characteristic paintings of colored people are reproduced on one page, with the artist's portrait. May-Halsey Miller's new and brilliant historical serial, "The Maid of Bo-casse," is commenced. "Flowers and Plants in Home Decoration," a seasonable article by George R. Khopp. "Felicita," by Julia Helen Twells, a charming Italian novelette with the glorious sunlight and cloudless skies of Capri as a background, and scenes charmingly illustrated by five drawings by Mr. Victor Perard. "Camel-back in the Canaries" is a delightful story of a ride in the deserts of the Canaries, with exciting adventures. This number of the Ledger Monthly has the first of the series of articles by Gen. James Grant Wilson on the famous war horses of his story, beginning with "Washington's Battle Chargers," with three illustrations. The fashion department by Grace Margaret Gould deals with the newest winter garments for women, with suggestions for trimming the newest hats, with many charming models and illustrations. In the Youth and Home department in addition to other delightful matter, there is an article for winter evening amusement entitled, "Tricks for an Evening with Children," by Geo. E. Walsh. All this goes to make up one issue of this magazine, which is published for fifty cents a year, five cents a copy. Robert Bonner's Sons, Publishers, Ledger Building, New York.

Lady Doctors in England.

There are in London and the provinces, according to an article on lady doctors in the Young Woman for August, no fewer than 37 institutions officered wholly or partially by lady doctors, and there are nearly 200 registered medical women who have been educated at the Handel street school or the Royal free hospital in Gray's Inn road. Miss Louisa Aldrich Blake, of the New Hospital for Women, is the first woman master of surgery of London university, and it is worth recording that the Royal College of Surgeons of Ireland four years ago conferred a fellowship on a woman—Miss Emily W. Dickson, daughter of a former member of parliament. The first lady dentist in London was Miss R. G. Halliday, a fully qualified dental surgeon.

The only way you can beat another man's game is to keep your money in your pocket.

Greenburg, Pa., July 11, 1898.

About four years ago one side of my abdomen began to enlarge from a growth inside. It grew to such proportions that it seemed to fill the abdomen. Then dropsy began and swelled both legs and so much so that twice their normal size. The doctors called the trouble enlargement of the spleen, and told me I must die. I was removed from the hospital and sent for Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm. I took seven bottles and continually gained and am well in every way now. The dropsy entirely disappeared and left the growth very small.

WHAT A WELL KNOWN RAILROAD Man And Resident of Lima Thinks of Foley's Kidney Cure.

I have been troubled a great deal with the backache. I was induced to try Foley's Kidney cure, and one bottle entirely relieved me. I gladly recommended it to any one especially my friends among the train men, who are very generally similarly afflicted. Geo. H. HAGAN, Engineer on L. E. & W. R. R. Sold by Anderson & Fowler.

If it takes nine tailors to make a man, how many does it take to construct a tailor made woman?

A punny child is always an anxiety to the parents. There seems generally no reason why the little one should be weak when it is so well fed. But the fact is that it does not matter how much food the child takes if the stomach cannot extract the nourishment from it. No benefit can be derived from just eating. This is the condition of many a sickly child. The stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition are not doing their work, and the body is really starving. It is little use to give fish foods, like cod liver oil or emulsions, in such a case, because these also have to be digested; they may lighten the stomach's labor but they don't strengthen it. Strength is what the stomach needs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves and increases the action of the blood making glands. It is superior to every other preparation for children's use, on account of its body building qualities, and also because it is pleasant to the taste and contains no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a valuable aid when the bowels are irregular. They are small. Children take them readily.
